

The Influenza

The influenza has been a real help to the Germans, for it has impeded all our war work, though it has not stopped it. Other things, like the murder of the men on the Ticonderoga, have put new energy into us.

But the influenza has deeply affected our life these last few days. To think of having no religious gatherings, and to have nearly all schools closed, and travel diminished, and so much activity diverted to the care of the sick! We are truly grateful that the deaths have been so few.

And we must record our gratitude for the fine character and ability called out by this affliction. How many young people have learned to bear responsibility, and how many neighbors have performed heroic services of love!

Two Wilsons

President Wilson appears to us in two characters. When he speaks to the Germans he speaks for the whole country, but when he speaks as a Democratic party man we cease to admire him.

We do not think with Roosevelt, that he is working for his own personal advantage, but that he feels that it is necessary for him to work for the Democratic party in order to get the support of enough Democrats to enable him to carry forward the war. But we do think with Roosevelt that the Republicans who pay taxes and pour out blood for the war should have their share in conducting it and setting the terms of peace. Except in rare cases in which the Republicans have nominated weak men, the welfare of the country will be promoted by the election of Republicans.

Who is Looking After Your Road?

The taxpayers should remember that they are paying for all mistakes made in roadbuilding in their country. Remedy—see that none but competent men have charge of the work.

How can we expect to have good roads when the man in charge of the road work is incompetent?

How long must we wait and how much speaking and writing will it require to convince the people that they need engineers in charge of their road work?

How much money has your county wasted trying to educate men to build and maintain roads?

No county is too poor to have good roads.

Austria Urges Lansing to Plead With President

Austria-Hungary through her new foreign minister, Count Andrássy, has sent a note to Secretary of State Lansing, requesting the secretary's intervention with President Wilson for an immediate armistice on all fronts and for the commencement of peace negotiations.

The note says: "Immediately after having taken direction of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and after the dispatch of the official answer to your note of October 18, 1918, by which you were able to see that we accept all the points and principles laid down by President Wilson in his various declarations and are in complete accord with the efforts of President Wilson to prevent future wars and to create a league of nations, we have taken preparatory measures, in order that Austrians and Hungarians may be able, according to their own desire and without being in any way hindered, to make a decision as to their future organization and to rule it.

"Since the accession to power of Emperor King Charles his immovable purpose has been to bring an end to the war. More than ever this is the desire of the sovereign of all the Austro-Hungarian peoples, who acknowledge that their future destiny can only be accomplished in a pacific world by being freed from disturbances, privations and sorrows of war.

"This is why I address you directly, Mr. Secretary of State, praying that you will have the goodness to intervene with the President of the United States in order that in the interest of humanity as in the interest of all those who live in Austria-Hungary an immediate armistice may be concluded on all fronts and for an overture that immediate negotiations for peace will follow."

Nurses in service overseas need sweaters and warm knitted articles as well as the fighting men.

No union honks in a front line cannon! "Last night at 8," writes one A.L.C. officer, "I must have fed 500 men. I got to bed at 10 p.m., was called at midnight and from then to 6 a.m. fed 800 more."

"The Red Cross has brought the only joy and happiness in the lives of the prisoners," write a New Haven soldier now at Camp Limburg, Germany, to his mother. He receives food and smokes regularly from the Red Cross.

The Red Cross has as many trades and professions represented in its ranks as the Army. One man offered for bravery shown while distributing chocolate and cigarettes under heavy fire at the front was a New York banker turned canvas worker.

A book of instruction for nurses' knitted garments has just been issued by the American Red Cross Department of Nursing with the request that these garments be prepared as quickly as possible in order to reach our nurses in France ahead of the cold weather.

Hun Militarists Have Lost Control

The general opinion among officials and diplomats is that the German proposal for an armistice and peace, while having its origin in a plan to gain time for strengthening the army and restoring its shattered morale, has now gotten beyond the control of the military party, and that the German people are the force which is driving the German Government to make for ending the war.

Another note from the German Government, explanatory of the changes that have been made, or are projected in the German constitution and form of government, was received recently thru the Swiss legation, but the State Department did not make it public. This note was understood to be supplementary to the preceding German communication, saying to the President that he must have knowledge of the efforts that have been made to democratize Germany.

President Wilson has been at work on his reply to Austria's renewed plea for an armistice and peace, and it was expected that it would be dispatched soon.

It was understood that in the note the President intended to touch upon the steps that Austria and Hungary have taken in the direction of releasing subject peoples from political bondage, but that the Austrian Government's plea would be referred to the allied governments. The Administration was said to be well convinced now that Austria already is nearly out of the war and that her will for peace is simply tempered by a natural disposition to get the best terms possible short of unconditional surrender.

Kentucky News

Humor continues that the U. S. Steel is endeavoring to secure additional land, leases and operations in the Black Mountain district in Harlan County, which, if consummated, will involve millions of dollars.

While a great deal, this would involve only a comparatively small part of the coal lands of Harlan County.

The spread of influenza throughout Harlan County has been most disastrous the past week. Hundreds of cases have developed, and it has been a physical impossibility for physicians to care for all the cases. Owing to this overwork, death certificates have not been filed and it is impossible to get a complete list of the deaths. At the undertaking establishments it is estimated the deaths in the County the past week have been at least seventy-five. The mortality has been heaviest in the mining camps, although deaths in the city have been numerous.

The influenza has not slighted Madison County altogether, yet the situation here is not as bad as is reported for some other localities. Nevertheless, it is bad enough. Dr. Hargoyne Gibson, City Health Officer, reports over fifty cases in the city, and they are distributed about over the County. The situation in the city is improving. There has been one death in the city, that of Mrs. Watts, who came over from Lexington.

The annual meeting of the Kentucky Highway Engineers' Association, formerly the County Road Engineers' Association, of Kentucky, will be held at Owensboro, November 12, 13 and 14. The meetings of the association previously have been held in February, but owing to bad weather at the time of the year and the desire for open air meetings, it was decided to hold the meeting in the fall. Officers of the association believe that past meetings have not been of the greatest benefit because inspection trips could not be arranged.

Kentucky will accept the challenge to greatly over-subscribe her original quota to the great United War Work Fund during the big drive the week of November 11. This was decided upon at a meeting of the State Executive Committee in Louisville, Wednesday afternoon, which was called especially to consider the proposition. General Chairman E. W. Hines, of Louisville, presided.

The meeting was attended by representatives from all parts of the State representing all seven agencies engaged in the drive: the Young Men's Christian Association, the Young Women's Christian Association, the National Catholic War Council, the Jewish Welfare Board, the War Camp Community Service, the American Library Association, and the Salvation Army. Reports were made of the recent departmental conference at Chicago, when representatives from fourteen states met to hear Dr. John R. Mott, of New York, director general of the campaign.

YANKS ADVANCE LINES WEST OF MEUSE RIVER

Gen. Pershing Tells of Heavy Fighting on the Verdun Front.

U. S. TROOPS SEIZE FOREST

Americans Clear Germans Out of Bourgoigne Woods and Drive Sharp Wedge into Enemy's Lines—Partial Withdrawal Made in Belleau Wood.

Washington, Oct. 28.—Heavy fighting on the Verdun front is described by General Pershing's communique. Strong German counter-attacks east of the Meuse were repulsed everywhere except in the Belleau wood, where four successive assaults forced a partial withdrawal by the Americans. West of the Meuse the American lines were further advanced in the face of determined resistance.

Huns Cleared From Woods. With the American Armies in France, Oct. 28.—The Americans have cleared the Germans out of the important Bourgoigne forest, north of Grandpre, driving a sharp wedge into the enemy lines.

The forest was taken in short rushes, the doughboys then swinging eastward behind the German lines and threatening to cut off the Hoch northwest of Grandpre.

The attack in the Grandpre region followed that of Friday, further to the eastward, in which the Americans advanced nearly half a mile near Bantheville, occupying the high ridge north of that village. The positions were taken after several assaults against the enemy machine-gun nests. One hundred and seventy prisoners were taken.

Yanks Win High Ground.

With the American Army Northwest of Verdun, Oct. 28.—From a day of extraordinarily severe fighting the Americans emerged slightly in advance of the positions they held the day before. The gains are regarded as extremely important, as high ground dominating much of the surrounding terrain has been gained.

There has been comparatively little alteration in the positions on the center, but the American footing in Belleau woods, east of the Meuse, was more securely fixed, notwithstanding the determined efforts of the Germans to force the Americans back.

The fighting for positions just beyond Belleau woods began at four o'clock in the morning, when the Americans drove their way forward. At daylight the Germans counter-attacked, and since the failure of that operation have launched three other attacks equally unsuccessful.

Despite the desperate resistance of the Germans and their apparent intention to initiate a counter-offensive, information falling into the hands of the Americans continues to indicate an enemy withdrawal to the Briquemy line, one informant declaring it to be the intention of the Germans to withdraw to that position between October 25 and 31.

LUDENDORFF RESIGNS

KAISER'S INTENTION TO ABDICATE RUMORED AFTER MILITARY DICTATOR RESIGNS.

A Radical Shake-Up in the German General Staff and War Cabinet is Expected as a Result of the Quartermaster General's Retirement.

Copenhagen.—Germany's answer to President Wilson's latest communication says:

"The German Government has taken cognizance of the answer of the President of the United States. The President is aware of the far-reaching changes which have been carried out and are being carried out in the German constitutional structure, and that peace negotiations are being conducted by a people's Government, in whose hands rests, both actually and constitutionally, the power to make the deciding conclusions. The military powers are also subject to it. The German Government now awaits proposals for an armistice, which shall be the first step toward a just peace, as the President has described it in his proclamation.—Self."

Western Newspaper Union News Service.

Amsterdam (via London).—The retirement of General von Ludendorff was officially announced at Berlin. Persistent rumors emanating from Berlin are to the effect that the Kaiser intends abdicating. The Frankfurter Zeitung openly demands the Emperor's abdication. A political shake-up in the German General Staff and War Cabinet is expected as a result of the Quartermaster General's retirement.

General surprise was caused in Berlin by the fact that the daily report from German headquarters was not signed, as usual, with the name of General Ludendorff. Later the following official announcement was issued:

"The Emperor, accepting the request to be allowed to retire of Infantry General Ludendorff, the first Quartermaster General and commander in time of peace of the Twenty-fifth Infantry Brigade, has placed him on the unattached list. The Emperor decided at the same time that the lower Rhenish Infantry Regiment No. 39, of which the General has long been chief, shall bear henceforth the name of Ludendorff."

His resignation, it is believed in London, will still further shake the faith of the German people in their military machine. In the resignation of General Ludendorff Germany loses what often has been described as her "military brains." Unknown before the war, General Ludendorff sprang into prominence in the fall of 1914 as chief of staff to Field Marshal von Hindenburg, then a General, in the operations against the Russians. When Hindenburg was given the chief command in August, 1916, Ludendorff was appointed First Quartermaster General, but his position in reality has been chief of staff and collaborator with von Hindenburg.

Soon after his appointment as First Quartermaster General, Ludendorff began to be looked upon as the real "boss" of Germany, and was recognized as the representative of the Pan-Germans at great headquarters. It was Ludendorff who brought about the retirement of Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg, and he was reputed to have been responsible for the appointment of the Chancellorship of Michaelis and von Heftling, both of whom were described as "stop-gaps." The General's role as First Quartermaster General has almost amounted to military dictatorship.

Hun Prisoners Are To Be Fed.

New York.—Prisoners to the number of 250,000 have been captured on western-front battlefields. It was made known when the Federal Food Administration disclosed that it is necessary to feed them in addition to feeding our own troops now in France and many millions of mouths. The statement points out the urgent need for a rigid conservation program on the part of the American people, declaring that we must share our food with 220,000,000 subjects of our allies in addition to feeding our own population, our armies and the 250,000 German prisoners. Half as much food again as has heretofore been sent must be forwarded to meet the need, and this, it is declared, can only be accomplished by conservation.

Wages of Shipyard Workers Increased.

Washington.—Upward revision of wages in all shipyards of the country to provide uniform national rates for practically all the shipyard trades, effective immediately, was announced by the Shipbuilding Labor Adjustment Board. Two great districts are created, one for the Pacific Coast, and the other embracing the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts and Great Lakes. In the first increases average 20 per cent; in the second 15 per cent, with the basic rates for the principal skilled trades fixed at 80 cents per hour in both.

Porto Rico Again Shaken.

San Juan, Porto Rico.—Another heavy earthquake shock was felt. The disturbance is reported to have caused further property loss at Margues and Ponce, and small loss of life and property at Aguadilla.

Although the Chinese have not been asked to fight in the armies of Europe, they are being used to a large extent in labor of various kinds. They receive a wage that seems enormous to them, compared with that which they are accustomed to receive, and in addition they get a bonus for leaving their own country and making a long journey to France.

The reply of President Wilson to the German peace note gives little hope for an armistice until the Emperor and the junker element in the government are thrown out. He has struck to the root of the whole matter and spoken language that is dignified and yet forceful and plain. The reply meets with the approval of the Allies, so far as appears.

Herr Liebknecht, the Socialist who dared to oppose the war at the beginning, and made himself obnoxious to the administration of the Empire until he was imprisoned, has been released and is received with enthusiasm wherever he goes or speaks. He is a man of ability and qualified to lead.

The danger of insolvency on the part of the German Empire is seen in the action of the people. They are withdrawing their money in the form of coin from the banks and hoarding it in their homes. The Treasury Department is forced to issue large amounts of paper currency to take its place. It is not to be expected that this kind of money can long retain its value. Financial distress threatens.

The selection of Count Andrássy as the successor of Count Hurian as prime minister of Austria-Hungary is regarded as favorable to the movement for peace on the part of the people. This desire is growing very rapidly and reports suggest that peace may soon be made with the other allies if the United States does not grant an armistice, in spite of the denial of Emperor Charles that he intends to desert Germany.

Independence Hall, Philadelphia, was the scene of a notable gathering, during the week, of representatives of eighteen of the Slavic peoples included in the Middle Europe project of Germany and Austria. At the conclusion of the meeting they issued a declaration of independence, unfurled the flag of a new federal state and rang a new liberty bell cast for the purpose.

Representatives of the Allied nations are gathering in Paris for a conference in regard to the matter of an armistice in case it is decided to grant one to Germany. The opinion of General Foch, the Commander-in-Chief, will count first in any terms that may be agreed upon as was the intention of President Wilson in his note to Germany. From present reports, no further move is likely to be made until some idea can be gained of the terms that are to be imposed on Germany.

Italy has begun her new drive against the Austrians during the week and is aided by the English troops. The action has been started in the valley of the Po and extends over a front of about thirty miles. Gains have already been made, and it is the hope of Italy that the Austrians may be driven back to the mountains by winter. They are eager to gain the Trentino district and Trieste, the "Italia Irredenta," as it is called.

Denmark has taken advantage of the times to enter a request for the return of Sleswick-Holstein, which was taken away from her by Prussia in 1864. By this loss of territory Denmark was deprived of her best land, and, for a time, was nearly ruined. Only the spirit of her people enabled her to rally and demonstrate to the world what could be done with a poor soil and meager resources.

Grip Epidemic Hits Mexico.

Mexico City, Oct. 28.—Spanish influenza is epidemic in virtually all parts of the republic, except the extreme south and a few of the Pacific coast states. Newspapers estimate the number of cases here at 60,000, but the death rate is low. The spread of the disease to the Tampico oil regions seriously menaces the oil industry.

Col. Roosevelt's Carnegie Hall Speech

If the President of the United States is right in the appeal he has made to the voters, then you and I, my hearers, have no right to vote at this election or to discuss public questions while the war lasts.

This appeal is emphatic repudiation and reversal of the President's announcement of a few months back that "politics is adjourned." It casts the gravest doubt on the sincerity of that announcement; and indeed for the last few months the Democratic party organization, acting with the support and direction of the President's closest advisers, such as Messrs. Burleson and Coolidge, has been working with naked eagerness for partisan success, and has displayed a greedy unscrupulousness as to methods and a complete subordination of national interest to partisan warfare never before known in our history during a great war. When this war broke out I, and all those who believe as I did, cast all thought of politics aside and put ourselves unreservedly at the service of the President. Of course if Mr. Wilson had really meant to disregard politics he would at once have constructed a coalition, non-partisan cabinet, calling the best men of the nation to the highest and most important offices under him, without regard to politics.

Now he openly by formal announcement repudiates all pretense of putting the public welfare above party. Now he declares that this is a party war, and that the Republicans, although he admits "that they have been unquestionably pro-war," are to be excluded from any share in controlling the war.

Now is this all. He makes his appeal on behalf of the Democratic party. But he is careful to qualify it so as to exclude all Democrats who put loyalty to the Nation or even loyalty to their party principles ahead of adherence to the administration. He in no way discriminates between Democrats who are pro-war and those who are anti-war. He asks the exclusion from Congress of the man who is anti-administration, without the slightest reference to whether his is pro-war or anti-war, loyal or disloyal, patriotic or unpatriotic. The President of the United States repudiates the position of being President of all the people, and substitutes for it the position of partisan leadership of one political faction; while even in this faction he makes servile adherence to his administration the test of membership and of the moral right of any man to do his share in the great work of national self-government.

Contrast with this the position of Abraham Lincoln. In the darkest days of the Civil War, Lincoln declined outright to make any party appeal or to apply any party test or any test save that of loyalty in the prosecution of the war and loyalty to the Union and to liberty. In March, 1863, he advocated sending to Congress only "unconditional supporters of the war," making no reference to any party; and in June of that year, in answer to some correspondents who signed themselves as "Democrats," he expressed his regret that they had not called themselves "American citizens," saying: "In this time of national peril I would have preferred to meet you upon a level one step higher than any party platform; and in August, in the only political letter he wrote that year, he appealed to "all those who maintain unconditional devotion to the Union," and in this appeal he explicitly included his own political friends with those of his political enemies, "whom no partisan malice or partisan hope can make false to the nation's life." He thus explicitly based his appeal to pro-war men, without asking about their attitude towards himself. Again and again he appealed to "all loyal men" and "to friends of the Union and liberty" and in 1864 he accepted his nomination as coming from the "unconditional Union men."

Now, what does Mr. Wilson mean when he speaks of these leaders as being, although "pro-war," yet "anti-administration?" He means that when the War Department was administered with inefficiency they investigated the matter and insisted upon efficiency. He means that when they found nothing effective was being done in ship-building they insisted that the work be speeded up. He means that when they found that six hundred million dollars had been spent for airplanes and yet that not an airplane had reached our soldiers at the front they insisted that our soldiers should get the airplanes for which the people had paid. Mr. Wilson regards it as "anti-administration" to demand that our gallant men at the front receive the guns and automobiles and tanks and airplanes and shoes and clothing for which Congress has appropriated so many billions of dollars. The entire offense of the Republican leader in Mr. Wilson's eyes is that they have demanded that inefficiency, waste and extravagance be remedied. Such a demand he treats as "anti-administration."

I hold, on the contrary, that these Republican leaders have in a great crisis shown complete indifference to party and complete devotion to the Union. They have disinterestedly supported Mr. Wilson in everything he did that was right, and fearlessly opposed him where he was wrong. Over half the Democratic leaders whom he is now supporting opposed him when he was right, and supported him when he was wrong. He urges that the people return to Congress the men who were anti-war but who shielded the failures of the administration. He urges that the people defeat for Congress the men who were pro-war but who sought to remedy the failures of the administration. The Republican leaders whom he assails have put loyalty to the Nation ahead of all other considerations and have conditioned their support of every executive official solely upon the efficiency with which that official serves the Nation.

And I ask you to consider one thing more, you Republicans and Independents and you Democrats who decline to put subservience to any man, ahead of the Republic. Indeed, I appeal most of all to the high-minded and patriotic Democrats whose boys are over in the army side by side with the boys of their Republican neighbors, and who do not wish to see these loyal neighbors treated as enemies of the Republic. President Wilson says that Republicans are not good enough to serve the Republic in Congress at this time. But they are good enough to die for the Republic in the army and navy! They are good enough to pay the taxes and subscribe to the Loan! We have sent our sons and our brothers to spill their blood like water overseas under the flag; we have given our strength and our money without stint to serve the country at home, to float the Loans, to back up the war activities of every kind; and now we are told that the blood of our sons, and the wives and little children, do not entitle us to any word in saying how the war is to be waged! Or what are the terms on which peace is to be made, or what shall be our policies after the war!

THE GREAT DRIVE—DRIVE IT HOME

Never before was the world asked for $170,000,000 for humane and benevolent work for soldiers and sailors.

President Wilson writes to Mr. Fosdick, head of the Welfare work for the Army and Navy:

"May I not call your attention to a matter which has been recently engaging my thought not a little?"

The War Department has recognized the Young Men's Christian Association, the Young Women's Christian Association, the National Catholic War Council (Knights of Columbus), the Jewish Welfare Board, the War Camp Community Service, the American Library Association and the Salvation Army as accepted instrumentalities thru which the men in the ranks are to be assisted in many essential matters of recreation and morale.

It was evident from the first, and has become increasingly evident, that the services rendered by these agencies to our army and to our allies are essentially one and all of a kind and must, of a necessity, if well rendered, be rendered in the closest co-operation. It is my judgment, therefore, that we shall secure the best results in the matter of the support of these agencies, if these seven societies will unite their forthcoming appeals for funds, in order that the spirit of the country in this matter may be expressed without distinction of race or religious opinion in support of what is in reality a common reserve."

The first question that will arise in many minds, on hearing that the President has requested a joint campaign for $170,000,000, on behalf of the different non-military organizations engaged in war work will be, "What is the need of such a large sum of money?"

The great underlying need is because of the mighty change in methods of warfare since the days of Napoleon and Grant. In our great Civil War of '61, a man went into battle, fought for a few hours, or at most, a day or two, and then retired to a place of safety, where he could rest and sleep and tone up his nerves. While taking the rest, he knew he was secure from danger.

In this war, all this is changed in every phase. From the moment our men leave our shores, they are under nervous strain. Every moment at sea they are under this strain because of submarines, and everywhere in France, where war preparations are under way, they are under this strain because of aeroplanes. When the reach the fighting line, they are under additional strain because of gas attacks. When they are resting behind the lines in their camps, they are under strain because of attacks by aeroplanes and long distance guns. The strain, therefore, on the nerve force is terrible, and how to relieve the strain is the great question.

One of the best ways has been to erect "huts" at all camp centers, where the men can gather, play games, sing songs, read, write letters, and watch theatrical performances and moving pictures. Another is by following the men into the trenches, providing them with articles of food not supplied by the government, with tobacco, chocolate, and other things that they crave.

And still another great piece of work is providing places where our men may go when on furloughs. The Frenchmen and Englishmen, when they get their five or ten days' leave, can get to their homes. The

Stanley and Not Democracy The Issue in Kentucky

The Cincinnati Enquirer, a Democratic newspaper of wide circulation and national influence, said editorially on Sunday, October 27, 1918:

"President Wilson's plea for the support of the candidates of his party as a pledge of support to himself is ill-timed and ill-advised, if, indeed, advice was asked or received. All America is supporting the Administration regardless of politics. We believe that such support will still be accorded the President regardless of the outcome of the election. Whether they are Democrats or Republicans we believe in placing Americans and Americans only on guard. That is the test that should be applied to every man's candidacy."

If the President desired to intervene in the Kentucky Senatorial Contest he should have acted, as he did in Mississippi and Georgia, before Governor Stanley usurped the Democratic nomination and put beyond the power of Democrats the choosing of a Democrat whom they might wish to represent them.

Stanley's Record

As Governor he has grossly abused the pardoning power and has turned loose upon society scores of the worst criminals the State has ever known.

He has sanctioned an increase in offices to be paid by taxpayers, after promising to abolish some of those already in existence.

He has increased the burden of taxes on the farmer and the owners of small homes, after promising to reduce those exactions.

He has Stanleyized the charitable and penal institutions of the State.

He attempted to convert the State Board of Health, a non-partisan institution, into a partisan factional machine to serve his personal purposes but was thwarted by the Court of Appeals which saved the State this disgrace.

He has been the willing instrument of the Liquor Trust, both in Congress and as Governor.

He vetoed the bill, passed by the joint efforts of Republicans and members of his own party, to prohibit the teaching of the German language in our Common Schools at public expense.

He dare not appeal to his own record in this campaign. But he cannot hide it. The people know it and will judge him by it.

The enlightened Christian Citizenship of Kentucky may be depended upon to do their duty in this contest.

only Americans to get back home for a good while will be those who are invalided home. What, then, is he going to do when he gets his week's leave from training and fighting? These seven organizations have set about to solve the problem. This has been done by engaging great hotels, with their tennis courts, golf links, where thousands upon thousands of American men can enjoy themselves as they would at a club or resort in this country. They places are being managed by American men and women who have gone over solely for this purpose. Aix-les-Bains and Monte Carlo, formerly famous gambling resorts, have been leased for vacation resorts.

The work that these organizations are doing will be of the utmost importance during the winter, when the fighting will be checked and the weather inclement, when the outdoor sports cannot be indulged in as they are in the summer, and when the feeling of loneliness over-takes a man even under normal conditions.

I have often heard the question asked, "Well, if this work is so necessary, why doesn't the government pay for it out of the bond issue?" The answer is simple and direct. It is a purely personal act of work, and to produce the best results must continue to be so. For the boys to feel that this is something that the folks at home are doing directly for them adds greatly to its value. If it were done by the government, it would be done under military direction. When a man now steps into one of these huts, he feels that he is stepping out from under military control and supervision, at least for a moment. The relief is great and valuable.

Man's Ignorance.

A man never discovers how ignorant he is until he tries to run the house when his wife is sick.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Hun's Last Cent Goes to War

A German Thrift Card. That is what the picture shows. It shows that a German private in the trenches was able to save enough out of his few cents a day wage to lend to his government.

Less than a dime a day! And still he can buy thrift stamps! This thrift card was taken from the body of Emil Schneider, Wurtemberg rifleman, killed by a United States Marine at Chateau Thierry, and is the property of C. A. Hamilton of the Washington staff of the Buffalo Times, whose son is in Europe.

Less than a dime a day! And still he can buy thrift stamps! Let that sink into your mind. Then figure out what you should be putting into Liberty Bonds.

And when you have figured it out—PUT IT INTO THE BONDS.

ALLIED ARMIES STRIKE AUSTRIA AT TWO POINTS

Italians Open Smash as Entente Forces Win Drive in the Balkans.

ROUMANIA TO RE-ENTER WAR?

French Patrols Cross the Danube in Vicinity of Lom Palanka—Enemy in Full Retreat in North-eastern Serbia.

London, Oct. 28.—The allied forces are striking hard at the weakest link in the armor of the central powers. Austria-Hungary is being closed in on two sides. The Italians, on the west, have begun what seems to be a serious offensive and in two days have made important gains, not only along the Piave river but in the mountains to the north.

In the Balkans the allies are driving steadily closer to Austria-Hungary. They have established connection with Roumania, making the re-entry of that nation into the war likely. Practically all of Hungary has been occupied since the surrender of that country. Nearly all of Serbia has been liberated, as has the greater part of Albania and part of Montenegro. The allies now are scarcely a score of miles from the Hungarian border at some points.

Allies Enter Roumania.

Paris, Oct. 28.—Allied troops have entered Roumania and the release of that nation from the domination of the central empires is made likely. The first allied forces to enter the country which was overrun by the Germans and Austrians more than a year ago were French patrols, which crossed the Rumanian border in the vicinity of Lom Palanka.

Other allied troops are known to be in the vicinity of Vidin, and the allies are reported to hold the southern or Bulgarian bank of the river for a distance of 50 miles.

Enemy Fleeing in Serbia.

They are spreading northward toward the famous "Iron Gates of the Danube" at the borders of Hungary.

The Austrian forces in the north of Serbia are in full retreat, closely pursued by the Serbians and the French. The capture of Negotin has brought the allies within 22 miles of Hungarian territory.

The enemy is being driven out of Albania. They already have fallen back to the north of the river Matia.

Paris Report on Victory.

An official report telling of the operations in the Balkans follows: "On the Danube in the region of Lom Palanka there have been artillery duels. The fire of our batteries damaged an enemy monitor."

"Serbia. On the front of Bratstvo-Kardelje allied forces continue in pursuit of the enemy, who is retreating to the north. Two hundred prisoners have been taken."

Retreat Made Swiftly.

With the Allied Armies on the Serbian Front, via Saloniki, Oct. 26.—The Serbians, supported by French cavalry, north of Nish are continuing to advance, with Belgrade 80 miles distant.

It is evidently the desire of the Austro-Germans to evacuate Serbia as quickly and as cheaply as possible. But their retreat is being made costly by the Serbians.

Serbian Win 60 Miles Beyond Nish.

London, Oct. 28.—Kraljevo, 90 miles east-northeast of Nish, has been occupied by the Serbian troops, says a Serbian official statement. In the same region the Serbians have crossed the Tseretisa river.

HUGE CROWDS SHUT SALOONS

Philadelphia Dram Shops Closed Again After Being Under Ban Three Weeks.

Philadelphia, Oct. 28.—Alarmed by the great crowds of Philadelphia who poured into Camden, N. J., H. I. Davis, president of the Camden board of health, issued an order closing every saloon in the city "in the interest of public health."

The saloons had been closed for three weeks owing to the influenza epidemic, but the ban was lifted shortly before noon. Early in the night extra details of police were called out, but the crowds became so great that Doctor Davis decided to again put the ban on. The closing order was modified in this city so as to permit the opening of churches Sunday and of schools on Monday.

BRITISH CUT HOG RATIONS

Allowance of Concentrated Feed to Be Stopped, Says the Agricultural Board.

London, Oct. 28.—Keepers of pigs have been notified by the board of agriculture of the probable discontinuance of the small ration of concentrated feed which has hitherto been allowed them. The notice says shipping space must be used to bring American soldiers and their supplies to France. The board says it is because of the policy to force the war to an early successful issue that action in cutting down feed supplies is taken.

Bethune's Far Away, But—

THIS belfry tower which has been bombarded off and on for years by the Germans is in Bethune. A long way from here is Bethune. A safe distance away.

And the way our boys and their allies are giving it to the Hun these days there seems little likelihood that these German guns will ever get close enough to Portsmouth, Ohio, or Richmond, Ky., or Uniontown, Pa., to wreck any buildings.

But battle's tide turns quickly. One letdown by our boys or their comrades-in-arms and the Hun would again have the whip hand.

The boys won't let down if they are kept fed, clothed and munitioned. Liberty Bonds are the agency which will keep them that way.

How many are you buying?

LETTER FROM H. E. TAYLOR From the Louisville Post Under Paris date of September 24, Mr. Taylor writes to C. A. Tevebaugh, State campaign director of the United War Work Campaign, which begins November 11, and associate State secretary of the Y. M. C. A., of being on tour with Homer Rodeheaver, Billy Sunday's famous singing evangelist. He says:

"Met a man the other day from Henderson, Mr. Letcher's son, which brought to my mind vividly pleasant associations there with many of your good citizens in frequent executive meetings. I am meeting so many big, generous-hearted men over here who are giving so liberally of time and talent as to make me feel still very close to home sections. President King, from Oberlin, 'blew in' the other day; the Rev. Beatty, from Louisville, today; Rodeheaver last Monday, etc., etc. . . . I am planning an extended tour with Rodeheaver, beginning next Friday. He will give his usual evening of song. I will speak for fifteen minutes just to rest him on 'running a sunshine factory,' will do his accompanying work and then during the day check up business conditions all along the line. We hope to cover France in the two or three months he is privileged to be here. It is difficult for me to get away from headquarters, but am sure it will be a broader grasp of the whole situation and make me better able to cope with the tremendous problems we have on hand."

"We had a memorial service a few weeks ago in honor of the ten secretaries who laid down their lives vicariously, as well as the thousands of sturdy American boys who have met their reward. Bishop Luther B. Wilson, of New York, had charge of the meeting. The church was crowded and the meeting was most impressive."

LIEUT. R. L. MURPHY BRINGS DOWN HUN PLANE

Lieutenant Murphy, a former Berea student, is in the 29th Aero Squadron and has recently been transferred from patrol duty in England to the front in France. The aviator says that these American birdmen put the "fear of God" into the Hun.

Following are extracts from a letter of Lieutenant Murphy:

"Three days ago, over in Germany, we were attacked by a lot of Hun machines. They shot down three of my comrades and wounded two others. One Hun machine got in the way of two guns on my machine, and you may rest assured that one Maubee sent that Hun crashing to the ground 13,000 feet below to make soap.

"This war is h—!! Two of my bunch lately came back to camp with their observatory shot dead, in the back seat of the machine, but for everyone of us they got, we got ten of them. It is not very pleasant to see a Hun machine coming at you firing 2,000 shots per minute from four machine guns. But the American aviators have sure put the fear of God into them. I carry four guns and also my Colt's automatic."

BEREA AVIATOR DOWNS A HUN

The Official U. S. Bulletin of October 26 states that a former Berea student, now in the Aviation Corps in France, Lieut. Aubrey Diamond, brought down a hostile balloon in an aerial flight.

PORTABLE PHONE FOR WOODS

How Forest Ranger Can "Cut In" Anywhere on Long Lines.

A forest officer of Missoula, Mont., has invented a very ingenious portable telephone, weighing only two and a half pounds and so practical that it has been adopted by the government and is part of the regular equipment of patrol in the national forests this season.

It is said that a field man equipped with this telephone, a few yards of light emergency wire and a short piece of heavy wire to make the ground connection can "cut in" anywhere along the more than 20,000 miles of forest service telephone lines and get in touch with the headquarters of a supervisor or district ranger. To talk, one end of the emergency wire is thrown over the telephone line, the two ends are connected to the portable instrument, and the instrument is connected to the ground wire, the end of which must be thrust into the damp earth or in water. Contact with the line wire is made possible by removal of the insulation from a few inches of the emergency wire.

The instrument, writes E. L. G. in St. Nicholas, does not ring the bell of the receiving telephone, but instead causes a screeching sound from a small megaphone-shaped apparatus descriptively known as a "howler." This instrument is installed at the ranger station telephone and is said to give effective notice that someone is on the wire. The transmission is equal to any standard wall telephone, conversations having been held with it for a distance of 1,000 miles.

New Source of Alcohol.
Alcohol is being made in Ciudad Juarez, Mex., from a plant called sotol, which grows uncultivated in Mexico and southern Texas. Consul E. A. Dow reports that from 18 to 25 gallons of alcohol can be produced from one ton of the plant.

TO KENTUCKY BOYS AND GIRLS

Every boy and girl in Kentucky is eager to help win this war. Here is a splendid chance to join with all the boys and girls in the United States in pulling for victory.

The United War Work Campaign to be held the week of November 11th is to raise money to carry on the work of seven organizations among our soldiers and sailors over there and over here. The seven are: The Young Men's Christian Association, the Young Women's Christian Association, the National Catholic War Council, the Jewish Welfare Board, the War Camp Community Service, the American Library Association, and the Salvation Army. They united at the earnest suggestion of President Wilson.

Every boy and girl in Kentucky between the ages of 12 and 20 is asked to earn and give $5.00 to this national fund of $170,500,000. The boys will be enrolled as "Victory Boys" and the girls as "Victory Girls."

To arouse interest in this great movement, boys and girls of Kentucky are invited to compete in an essay contest. The best Kentucky essay in each case will be forwarded to Chicago to compete with the best essays from the thirteen other states of the Central Department—Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, North Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas and Colorado.

The judges in Kentucky will be very prominent educators. The boy and the girl winning in this State will receive $5.00 each. The boy and the girl winning in the Central Department contest will receive $10.00 each. State winners will be announced early in the campaign. Department winners will be announced the last day of the campaign.

Get busy at once, boys and girls of Kentucky. Prepare your essay and be sure it contains only 500 words, or less. The subjects are: "The Work of Any One of the Seven Organizations," "How a Boy Can Earn and Give Five Dollars," "How a Girl Can Earn and Give Five Dollars," or any other topic bearing on the campaign. Then send it to the following address: "Victory Boys' Contest" or "Victory Girls' Contest," 633 S. Fourth Street, Louisville, Ky., the State headquarters of the United War Work Campaign.

This contest is open to all. Public and parochial school pupils are urged to take part in it.

Health Board will not Raise Influenza Ban

The State Board of Health, at its meeting at the Seelbach at 2 o'clock this afternoon to discuss the influenza situation, will not rescind the general closing order for Kentucky. It may modify restrictions for the sections of the State from which he "flu" has practically disappeared, but even this is regarded as unlikely. It is within the power of the board to keep the lid on tight in one part of the State and lift it entirely in another, but from the tenor of the discussion by Dr. J. N. McMonnck, secretary of the board, this is regarded as unwise at present.

FRANCE HAS AIRPLANE GRAFT

Three Army Lieutenants Get Prison Terms for Accepting "Presents" From Firms.

Paris, Oct. 28.—Three lieutenants in the French army have been sentenced to a year in prison and demotion and three noncommissioned officers have been sent to jail for three months as a result of a trial by court-martial for accepting gifts of from $250 to $1,000 from manufacturers in connection with the acceptance of airplanes on behalf of the army. One lieutenant was acquitted by the court-martial.

Unne went to the United States on an official mission, which has since been canceled. He is believed to be there now.

BAD ODOR FROM OIL LAMPS

How to Remove Cause of a Very Frequent Nuisance.

The most frequent cause for a bad odor from lamps and oil heaters is on account of a bit of oil that may be left on the outside of the lamp, especially if the lamps be of nickel or other metal which are filled through openings in the tops that are closed by small metal caps screwed on. If lamps or heaters remain for a day or two unlighted, the oil will often soak through the pores of the metal, so they should be carefully wiped off with a dry cloth before using.

If the country housekeeper who uses lamps will take her lamp wicks when new and soak them in elder vinegar she will be pleased with the result. Don't wring them out, but hang near a stove or lay on a plate until dry. This will double the lighting power of your lamps or lanterns. Therefore, with wicks so prepared, only one cleaning a week is necessary, for the wicks won't smoke, and globe and chimney will not blacken around the top.

JUDGING AGE OF THE FISH

How It May Be Determined by the Scales or "Otoliths."

Could you tell the age of a fish if asked to do so?

It has been found that the age of a fish may be read from its scales. These increase in size by annual growths, two rings being formed each year. The "otoliths," or ear stones, which lie in two sacs on either side of the base of the cranial cavity, afford another means of determination. Like the scales, otoliths increase by two rings annually. Each spring a white ring is formed and each autumn a black one. Thus the number of either white or black rings in an otolith given the age of the fish in years. In the case of flatfish the latter method has been found more reliable, whereas in the case of the cod the scales give a better result. Although varying much in size and shape in different species, the otoliths show a remarkably constancy in the same species; hence they are of considerable value in the diagnosis of a species.

Why We Nod "Yes" and Shake "No."

The question, "Why do we shake 'no' and nod 'yes' when we mean 'yes'?" is very easily answered. These actions originate in infancy. The baby turns its head away to prevent disagreeable things from getting into its mouth. If it is not hungry it will turn the head from side to side to avoid the nipple.

In time this shaking of the head becomes associated with disagreeable things and unwelcome thoughts. In like manner the nod originated in the motion of the infant's head to take food. After the child had words to express its desires the nod and shake remained to express approval or disapproval. In addition to this fundamental cause mimicry helps to perpetuate the action.

Camphor Plantation.

The first and only bearing camphor plantation of any size in this country is located at Satsuma, Fla., says Popular Science Monthly. It contains over 2,000 acres of camphor trees which last year yielded over 10,000 pounds of crude camphor. This year it is expected the yield will be many times this amount. Florida has several other plantations, which will soon come into bearing.

Door to Peace Will Be Opened With Products From Fields, Says Governor

By FRANK O. LOWDEN, Governor of Illinois

Upon the fortitude and patriotism of the farmers and stockmen of this country the whole future of the world civilization may depend. It is easy enough in a great world like this to add to your factories. It is easy enough to multiply the force of production in every other field, but even though the direst peril threatens the nation, our fields are limited. We cannot multiply them, and therefore perhaps the hardest task of all is the task of the farmer.

Many people find it difficult to understand why there should be this shortage of food. This shortage hasn't come solely as a result of this war. Farseeing people for generations before the fitful fires of the war broke out at the Belgium boundary line, thoughtful men had seen that the great problem of the future, even though there were permanent peace, was the feeding of the people of the world.

Thoughtful people have noted that well nigh the limit of arable lands on the globe had been reached, and no more lands were to be made in any substantial quantity at least, to keep up with the multiplying industry of the world.

In a single decade our exports of foodstuffs have decreased 50 per cent in value, much more than 50 per cent in quantity, because the prices were higher at the end of that period than they were at the beginning. That being the situation, when the war opened it was inevitable that the great question confronting every nation a party to this war was the question of food, and therefore every nation of the world is upon short rations.

I have said ever since we entered the war that if the people only could understand all it meant for themselves and their children and for civilization, I had faith enough in the American people to know that they would win the war at whatever cost. It is a war, a war to the death, between the old forces of evil and good, a war that has been waged since the beginning of time, but that for the first time in the history of the world has become worldwide and has entered upon its final battle.

On one side are those who are fighting for the principles that men are incapable of governing themselves, and that, therefore, government must be imposed from above. On the other side they insist that men are capable of governing themselves.

"Gott Mit Uns"

DOES it make your blood boil every time you hear that phrase above? Do you figuratively foam at the mouth when you see the blasphemy engraved on a belt buckle worn by one of the murderers of the Hohenzollern armies?

There is an outlet for this justifiable wrath of yours.

Liberty Bonds are selling here for $50 and $100 and $1,000.

Just how angry are you? Just how much are you outraged by the tribe of savages who emblazon their trappings with "Gott Mit Uns?"

Make Purchase of Bonds Easier

Cleveland banks and trust companies have agreed upon a plan which makes buying Liberty Bonds very close to the easiest thing in the world.

To those who cannot conveniently spare the cash for their bonds, they will make loans up to 90 per cent of the par value of the subscriptions for ninety days from October 24, on bonds purchased through these institutions. The interest rate will be the coupon rate, 4½ per cent.

Moreover they will renew these loans, when satisfactorily reduced, for a second ninety days, at one-half of one per cent in excess of the Federal Reserve bank's discount rate on such loans. The Reserve bank's rate of discount now is 4½ per cent, subject to slight change at any time.

These loans will not interfere with the borrower's regular line of credit. The purpose of the plan is to encourage the taking of larger bonds than would otherwise be bought.

THE WESTERN FRONT AT HOME

Earn and give. For a year the young people of America have been conched in thrift. Instead of the old problem in the arithmetic book, "If Mary's mother gave her three apples, Jane gave her two, and she ate one, how many would she have?" the third grade girl in now sent to the blackboard to solve, "How many Thrift stamps at 25 cents apiece will Mary own at the end of 12 months if she saves 10 cents a week?"

The girl in the grade above her is learning in her arithmetic lesson how many Thrift stamps it takes to buy the yarn for 500 helmets for the soldiers in France. Still farther on the eighth grader is told to figure in terms of War Savings stamps how much it costs to supply a regiment of Uncle Sam's men with shelter tents.

And now the Earn and Give club of the younger girls of the Young Women's Christian association is organized to turn those Thrift lessons into giving. The children of America have been turning in pennies and nickles and pasting a green stamp on their Thrift card. The Earn and Give club can now use some of those cards and War Savings stamps in their campaign among the younger people for the united war fund.

This fall when the war council of the Y. W. C. A. made plans for the 1918 war drive, it included in its program the rule that no young girls under eighteen can do any soliciting, on the streets or otherwise. They can give, but they can only give by earning. Consequently in order to co-ordinate the efforts of the girls in all the districts over the country, the Earn and Give club is enrolling members and has given out an estimate of $5 apiece to be earned for the war fund campaign by the American girls who still count their age in 'teens. Five dollars apiece from the younger girls of the country will mean that the nation as a whole will fill its charitable organizations' war chest.

Some high school girl in New York city is going to earn her $5 by shining her own shoes instead of stopping at the Greek stand on her way to school and by making her own sandwiches for her noon lunch. Out in Iowa the girl who has been spending 15 cents plus war tax for a movie three nights a week is going to draw a line through the movie habit except when there is an especially good bill. More than one girl plans to clean all her own gloves this winter and to salvage all the paper and collections of junk about the house which should be sold to the junk man to be worked over into some productive industry. The girls in their 'teens are going to earn instead of ask others for the money. They are to sacrifice and give in their own names and older women will make the public requests for money elsewhere.

Many of the girls who are waiting to join the Earn and Give club are already patriotic leaguers, and they have learned several practical lessons in the thrift that will make them effective members of the new club by their conservation of fruits and vegetables. They have canned and pickled. Now when the end of summer brings the beginning of school they will change their thrift into winter thrift and begin saving their $5 for the Y. W. C. A. war fund.

"Wherever You Are Is the Western Front" is the slogan which the Earn and Give club has adopted. Anna, one wily thirteen-year-old daughter of New York's East side, who was one of the first and youngest members to join the campaign at a New York settlement house, had to have it explained to her that instead of western front meaning fight and fight meaning fists, the western front means work and work means save in order to give.

The girl who joins the Earn and Give club will discover that in conjunction with her working and saving in order that her club will furnish its quota of the money that is going to help the girls like herself in France and Belgium, she will also find numerous ways in the community to help the war that she had never dreamed of. She will see that all the fruit pits and stones that can be saved from her own dining table and from those of her neighbors, are dropped into the little red barrel at the corner, in order that the carbon which the seeds contain can be used in making charcoal for the American soldiers' gas masks. She will save all the tin foil that she sees for the Red Cross. She will help collect clothing for the French and Belgian orphans and perhaps send them some of her own.

School girls in India, children from squallid, dingy homes, with absolutely no spending money, gave last year to Belgium and Armenian relief when they themselves were not getting enough to eat. They gave up their meat once a week for the Belgians, though they only had it twice a week themselves, and for the Armenians they set aside the handful of fresh grain that otherwise each girl would have ground in her own little stone mill. Both contributions, from all the girls in one missionary's school, amounted only to $5 a month. "But it was a tremendous sacrifice," their teacher writes, "although a joyous one. It actually meant less bread each day, and once a week a meal of dry bread and water. This was done by 50 girls from the meanest homes in the world—children between the ages of five and fifteen."

Four hundred thousand girls in 47 states have become Patriotic Leaguers since America declared war. If as many school girls and working girls from all classes pledge to earn and give, the united war fund campaigners will have $2,000,000 of their $170,500,000.

WHITE LEGHORNS FOR SHOW

Main Points Are That Fowls Should Be Snow White, Free From Color Foreign to Variety.

In exhibiting Leghorns the main points are that the birds should be white—that is to say, snow white, with due amount of luster and free from brassiness, creaminess, "greenness" (a term usually referred to the immature condition of the feather commonly found in young stock), gray specks and color foreign to the variety. The comb in single-comb varieties should have five points. The pullet should weigh three and one-half pounds, the hen four pounds, the cockerel four and one-half pounds and the cock bird five and one-half pounds. The ear lobes are required to be white, and should more than one-third of the surface be covered with red in cockerels and pullets, same would be disqualified, but this is allowable in hens and cock birds. Feathers other than white in any part of plumage and shanks other than yellow would also disqualify the White Leghorn. Other general disqualifications are as follows: The presence of stubs, feathers or down on the shanks or between the toes, side springs, squirrel tail, etc.

COMFORTABLE FOWL IS BEST

Poultry to Do Well Should Not Be Exposed to Severe Weather in Fall and Winter.

That farm flocks are often too much exposed to the weather, and that the farmer would realize more from his poultry if he did not allow them outdoors during the fall and winter, are, without doubt, established facts, says A. C. Smith of the Minnesota experiment station. The idea often advanced that poultry can withstand any amount or degree of cold weather provided it is dry, is not borne out by experience. Poultry should not be exposed to either wind or rain in the autumn.

House the birds comfortably if you wish eggs. Keep them in the house after the ground freezes. Let them out only during the middle of the day as a rule in the fall after the frost comes. If you cannot take the trouble to get them in early in the afternoon, keep them in.

HANDLE PULLETS WITH CARE

Make All Changes Gradually and Keep Roosting Quarters Dry and Well Ventilated.

Pullets beginning to lay should be handled with exceptional care. Do not think because they have started to lay that you should confine them in their winter quarters. Make no changes on them till the weather will permit; then take plenty of time in varying the ration. Make all changes gradually. Keep the roosting quarters dry, well ventilated, but boarded up tight on the north, east and west sides. They should then have a comfortable house, and when handled by a careful person who understands the nature of the hen they should produce abundantly.

Demand Far Exceeds Supply and Prices Rule Exceedingly High—Give Hens Summer Feed.

The demand for strictly fresh eggs during the late fall and winter months far exceeds the supply, prices rule very high during that period and the breed of hens and the system of managing them that will produce a good egg yield at this time of the year is being much sought after. This can be accomplished by starting in the fall with a good laying strain of fowls and managing them in a systematic way, giving them summer conditions in feeding throughout the winter.

RIDDING SOILS OF GAPEWORM

Effective Measure is to Plow During Winter—Freezing Weather Kills Insects.

Winter plowing is an effective method of ridding soils of the gape worm. This worm causes the so-called "gapes" in little chicks, and can only result from contaminated soil. Winter plowing throws the worms to, or near the surface, where freezing weather quickly ends their existence.

THE AMERICAN SOLDIER

GRINS BEAM ON YANKS WHO CURSE LUCK WHEN THEY MISS A FIGHT

"The American Soldier in France Sees Ahead. He Sees Big. He Feels Big"—Inspiring Tribute to American Troops.

Western Newspaper Union News Service.

Washington.—"The American soldier in France sees ahead. He sees big. He feels big." This is the inspiring tribute to American troops "by a Colonel" now with the American expeditionary forces in France. The letter, which will be printed this week, is "going over" in the official publication devoted to troops behind overseas, and here given publicity for the first time, is as follows: "The big show at Chateau Thierry has been on all this past week and that has attracted our attention more than the work. The big map showing the changes in the situation as fast as the bulletins come in is in the hall, at the foot of the stairs, and sometimes there are 200 gathered around it.

"Most of us come from some division and whenever one of us sees that his division is in the light he goes off damning his luck because he's not with his outfit. Oh, you don't know what a difference it has made in the morale of every one. I think they were all disappointed at our slowness in getting over at the appearance, training and equipment of our men. But now that we have so many here and so many more coming, and they have either seen or been told how wonderfully our men fight, why they are just beside themselves with joy. The whole attitude of the officers of our allies has changed toward us. We are now the thing. No more patronizing. No condescensions. They listen and defer to our opinion, they adopt our views, the people, the papers, both British and French. They now love us and we love them in us, and we are all in perfect accord and sympathy. We are the new circle, the inspiration of the moment, the big brother, the unbeatable ground, the magnificence for we have put our men in, in loss of them, raw and tried, but big, enthusiastic and resourceful young America—full of confidence in himself and his country, with faith that right is on our side, with faith in his neighbor by his side, with faith in his own power. We are the new circle, the inspiration of the moment, the big brother, the unbeatable ground, the magnificence for we have put our men in, in loss of them, raw and tried, but big, enthusiastic and resourceful young America—full of confidence in himself and his country, with faith that right is on our side, with faith in his neighbor by his side, with faith in his own power."

Flames Sweep Canton Stores.

Canton, Ohio. Fifteen buildings covering nearly two blocks in the heart of Canton's business district were destroyed by fire. Destruction of several more blocks of property was threatened for several hours, and the conflagration was stopped only by the combined efforts of Canton, Massillon and Alliance Fire Departments and several hundred citizen volunteers. The loss in both property and stock is put at $1,500,000. Explosion of pulleys and stocks of other combustibles wrecked several buildings that might have escaped the flames.

A Temporary Raise in Board is forced by war conditions. For twenty-five years the board has remained the same in Berea, but the unusual situation in which the whole country finds itself now makes it impossible for us to live on the same money as we have in the past. This adds $6.00 to the former expenses of the girls and $15.00 to the expenses of the boys, but still leaves the cost half that at other schools and "cheaper than staying at home."

PAYMENT MUST BE IN ADVANCE, incidental fee and room rent by the term, board by the half term. Installments are as follows:

	FALL TERM
	EXPENSES FOR BOYS	ACADEMY AND NORMAL	COLLEGE
Incidental Fee	$ 5.00	$ 6.00	$ 7.00

In no case will special Business Fees exceed $15.00 per term.

All students do some work with their hands from six to sixteen hours a week as janitors or in the farm, carpenter shop, printing office, laundry, boarding hall, office, etc., and receive pay which reduces their expenses.

Any able-bodied young man or young woman can get an education at Berea if there is the will to do so.

If it is impossible for any young man or young woman to be in school the full year, by all means they should enter for a course during the winter and spring terms.

The public schools will close about Christmas and the teachers and advanced pupils should not be idle through the long winter months but should be studying in Berea where the best education can be gotten for least money.

Applicants must bring or send a testimonial showing that they are above 15 years old, in good health and of good character. This may be signed by some former Berea student in good standing or some reliable teacher or neighbor. The use of tobacco is strictly forbidden.

War Time Sweeteners

AMERICA has several excellent war time sweeteners that will be used largely during the shortage in the sugar supply.

They are maple sugar, syrups, honey and molasses and may be used in preparing desserts and other dishes requiring sweetening.

When a cup of syrup or honey is used to replace a cup of sugar the liquid in the recipes should be decreased one-fourth. One-third of a cupful of sugar is equivalent to one-third of a cup of honey, about one-half cup of syrup and about one-half cup of corn sugar. One-fourth of a cup of sugar is equal to about one-half cup of syrup or one-third cup of corn sugar. One tablespoon of sugar is equal to one tablespoon of honey, about one and one-half tablespoons of syrup and one and one-third tablespoons of corn sugar.

Sugar may be saved by the use of raisins, dates, figs, dried pears and fruit pastes used on the breakfast cereals.

Fruit marmalades, butters and jellies should be used to take the place of the ordinary sweetening at a meal and not as accessories to it. Fruits may be preserved without sugar. It may be added when sugar is more plentiful.

Preserving demands this year a thin syrup instead of a heavy syrup.

If sugar is used one-half of the amount may be replaced by another sweetener.

Drying is a means of preserving (without sugar) apples, cherries, strawberries and black caps.

When ready to use they may have added the needed sugar in the form of a syrup. When sugar is more plentiful fruit juices may be made into jellies or may be used as fruit juices with or without sugar, as beverages, fruit gelatins and frozen desserts.

Fresh fruits supply the place of sugar in the diet. They should be used freely. Desserts where sugar is scarce may be made of gelatins, junkets, custards, puddings and cakes.

WHY

Physical Defects Make Children Backward

Neglected supervision of the child by its parents before it enters school is the subject of sharp rebuke and admonition from Dr. Wilmer Krusen, director of the department of public health and charities of Philadelphia. The general tendency of parents to treat without concern the symptoms of physical disorder displayed in their children, especially so long as the little ones are able to romp about in all the exuberance of youth, is taken seriously to task by the director.

"It is universally agreed that the personnel of a military organization must be physically fit to endure the trials and hardships incident to its particular duties," says Doctor Krusen. "In a measure the same holds true of the children who are to enter a new environment when registered upon the school rolls, and who are to give up their customary hours of play at home for a seat in the classroom, to be occupied for definite hours every school day. A change of discipline from that of the home to that of the school, together with the labors of study, brings about a complete mental change in the attitude of the child. Are your children prepared for this change or are the older boys and girls ready to take up their advanced studies?"

"The eyes, ears, teeth, nose and throat should receive special attention, as defects of these parts of the body are most frequent.

"Defective vision must be corrected if the child is expected to keep up with its studies and to maintain the same standard as the normal child. Good hearing is also essential to the child who receives oral instruction.

as many cases of backwardness are primarily due to defects of hearing. Disordered tonsils and adenoids are responsible for no small number of cases of illness among children, more especially during the school term. By having them removed at an early date we permit the child a better opportunity to combat the diseases of childhood.

"Of no less importance are the teeth. We cannot hope to improve the physical state of the schoolchildren unless their food is properly masticated by sound, healthy teeth. Infections through the mouth often have their beginning in carious teeth."

The Average Man.

The standard of any nation is measured by the average of its citizens. The exceptional man gets the double line notices in the papers and in the biographical dictionaries, but the average man does the business and gets but little reward. The average man is the bone and sinew of the state, while the exceptional man constitutes the scallops and the decorations. The average man fights the battles, the exceptional man wears the shoulder straps. The average man produces the coin, the exceptional man appropriates it. The average man furnishes the depth in the river of humanity, the exceptional man is only the wave that surges for a moment on its surface. The solid, substantial citizen, who meets his obligations, fulfills his duty of citizenship, in the very foundation stone of all that is wholesome in our civilization. The term "man" is here used generically and includes woman, for high average womanhood is quite as important to society as that of the opposite sex. There are plenty to offer tribute to the exceptional man, why not tribute to the average man who makes the other possible?

He Finished Bulgaria. You—?

MAKING it didn't seem such a very important assignment when General Franchet d'Esperey was sent to the Bulgarian frontier to take charge of the Allied forces there. But Germany chose, in a different key, the cry of the Allies that nothing in many months has meant a greater step toward hastening complete Allied victory than the defection from the war on the part of Bulgaria.

It practically ends the dream of Germany for control of the East; it pretty nearly cuts off the Turkish army, and it may make possible the reentry of Serbia into the war.

BUT IT DOESN'T END THE WAR!

The Allied armies must follow this Balkan victory with heavy, hard, steady blows.

That means a tremendous undertaking in the way of supplies, arms, food, defensive and offensive munitions.

It is expensive to transport to that point.

But it is worth the cost.

Liberty Bonds must make it possible. Will you buy more of them?

LESSON FOR NOVEMBER 10

JACOB RECEIVES HIS FATHER.

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 27:1-29.
GOLDEN TEXT—Speak every man truth with his neighbor.—Ephesians 4:25.
DEVOTIONAL READING—Ephesians
4:25-32.
ADDITIONAL MATERIAL—Genesis 27:
1-45, 1st Samuel 12:17-20; Zechariah 8:16-17;
Acts 5:1-11.

I. Isaac's Purpose Regarding the Birthright (27:1-4).

The intimacy of old age reminded Isaac that he should not let his house in order. The particular matter needing attention was the determination as to who should be the head of the house when he was gone. As to whether Isaac knew what God had told Rebekah concerning Jacob's priority we are not told (Gen. 25:23), but it is evident that he lacked spiritual discernment, being under the sway of his appetite. Even though he was ignorant of God's plan as revealed to Rebekah, Esau's action in marrying heathen women (Gen. 26; 34, 35), ought to have convinced Isaac that Esau was unfit to be the head of the house which was in line of the covenant blessing.

II. Rebekah's Scheme to Frustrate Isaac's Plan (vv. 5-17).

Having heard Isaac's instructions to Esau, she took steps to divert the father's blessing from Esau to Jacob. She knew it was God's will that Jacob should have the birthright, but had no scruples as to what method should be used in its accomplishment.

1. Rebekah's instructions to Jacob (vv. 5-10).

She sent Jacob to bring two kids from the goats, promising that she would make savory meat, such as Isaac loved. She knew that Isaac's weak spot was his stomach.

2. Jacob's hesitancy (vv. 11-17).

He foresaw the difficulty and danger which confronted him. His hesitancy was not because he had conscientious scruples against doing the deed, but was afraid of being found out. Some have a desire to do evil, but refrain from it because they are afraid of being caught. Rebekah undertakes to bear the curse that may come, so Jacob's scruples are set aside. She clothes him with Esau's raiment, and places him in his hands the food.

III. Jacob Deceives Esau (vv. 18-29).

1. Interview between Isaac and Jacob (vv. 18-25).

The quickness with which the savory meat was brought, aroused suspicion in the mind of Isaac. In order to rid him of suspicion Jacob deliberately lied. He not only lied, but blasphemed the name of God in declaring that his success was due to the help of Jehovah. This lie is again repeated when Isaac questions him further. One lie calls for another. Having started on the road of deception he was obliged to lie in order to cover up his deceit.

2. The paternal blessing (vv. 26-29).

It embodied the following particulars: (1) A fertile soil and abundant products (v. 28). Man is dependent upon God for the fruitage of the soil. Few stop to consider their obligation to him for temporal blessings. (2) National pre-eminence (v. 29). God was to give him a numerous and powerful offspring. This has in a large measure been fulfilled, but in a still larger measure it remains to be fulfilled. (3) Pre-eminence among his kindred (v. 29). "The elder shall serve the younger." (4) The object of God's special care (v. 29). Being God's choice, God obligates himself to care for him. Those who would misuse Jacob would suffer; those who would favor Jacob would be favored. Those who are chosen of God enjoy his special care, and woe be to him who would dare to molest them. This included temporal and spiritual blessings. Happy is he who enjoys the friendship of God.

IV. Esau's Remorse (vv. 30-33).

Scarcely had Isaac ceased blessing Jacob till Esau came for the blessing. The secret was now out. Lying and deceit cannot long be hid. In the face of what had been done, Isaac shakes with fear. No doubt this is due to the manifest presence of Jehovah. Esau gives forth a terrible wail. While shedding bitter tears of disappointment, he rages with passion and plans to murder Jacob after Isaac's death. This is a most bitter experience for Esau, but he is merely reaping what he sowed. For a brief indulgence of his flesh he sold his birthright. May Esau's folly warn us of choosing fleshly indulgence rather than spiritual blessings. Whenever one turns from the love of God to the gratification of worldly lusts, he is guilty of Esau's profligacy.

Source of Power.

Only those who are lifted up from the earth draw men unto them. The world is possessed by those who are not possessed by it. The momentum of love is the source of power.—Francis G. Peabody.

Sabbath Observance.

If Sunday had not been observed as a day of rest during the last three centuries, I have not the slightest doubt that we should have been at this moment a poorer people and less civilized.—Mencius.

THE SECOND LINE OF DEFENSE

From the Mississippi valley to the flaming front in Flanders is not as far today as the distance from Paris to Berlin. The Atlantic ocean is not as wide as the River Somme. The girl in the munition factory in the middle West is very close to her brother in the front-line trenches. If her work falters, if one untrue torpedo passes the careful scrutiny of the inspector, the lives of American soldiers pay the price.

It is as necessary to keep the girl who makes the shells physically fit and high of courage as the man who fires the gun.

The glory and excitement of war are for the man in khaki. Grinding, monotonous labor far away from the flying flags and martial music is the portion of the girl who makes munitions.

One and a half million women and girls have marched into the service of the United States government, to take the places of the men who have been called to the colors. With every draft and with the opening of every munition cantonment the number is multiplied. These girls work long hours and the work is hard and monotonous. Furthermore, they work at high nervous tension. On the skill of their fingers and the accuracy of their eyes depends the lives of many soldiers, the winning or losing of many battles.

"I can't sleep at night because I'm so afraid I may have passed on something that was not quite true," said one young girl not yet in her twenties, who inspected hundreds of torpedoes every day.

"Unless something can make this girl forget at night, and find some rest, her hand will lose its cunning."

"Nights and Sundays," said another, "I walk and walk, and I never go the same route twice until I have worn out all the others, and yet I can't forget that perhaps some time, somehow, during the day something may have gone through that was not quite right."

"I was just on the edge of going back home," said another. "I couldn't stand it. Then the recreation leader asked me if I played basket ball, and I told her I was too old. I'm twenty-eight. She insisted that I just try throwing the ball, and now I'm captain of the basket ball team. I play tennis, and can 'set up' and 'wig-wag,' and they're going to make me forewoman of the room. That would have frightened me to death once. But everything is different now; that we have our War Service club."

The war department had seen the need of occupations for out-of-work hours if the employees were to work at their greatest efficiency, and through the ordinance department asked the Young Women's Christian Association for recreation leaders, to line up the girls and direct their free-time pleasures.

The government rounded out the Y. W. C. A. that as an organization it always had had an interest in the right housing of girls, in the right feeding of girls, and in the right education of girls, and that the intelligent care of these girls in the munition factories was one of the essentials in the winning of the war. The government could house and feed them. It could put up recreation buildings, but when this was done it was as helpless as the father of a motherless girl. The government is a composite man. He didn't know what a girl should do when the six o'clock factory whistle blew. He only knew she needed looking after and he called to the one woman's organization that for half a century had made a study of the needs of girls. Vaguely, he had an idea that she should be encouraged to play, that she needed wholesome recreation, and some one, wise and sympathetic as a careful mother, to guide her social activities.

The Blue Triangle sent its play lady to salute and go to work. Workers are asked for in recreation buildings of all the 22 federal industrial reservations or munition cantonments which have been opened this summer in several of the states. These reservations spring up out of the very fields in a few weeks. They are employing thousands of workers. Many of these women have come from far distant homes. The government provided dormitories and mess barracks. In some places it is putting up recreation buildings. Where such a building is not provided by the government, the Y. W. C. A. will furnish it, using one already standing when available, and building when that is necessary. All these buildings, whether government or association-owned, will operate under the sign of the Blue Triangle. They will have big living rooms, assembly rooms for entertainments, club rooms, and gymnasiums. The Blue Triangle will furnish a program of service work, educational classes, games and entertainments. Military and signal corps drills will be in charge of soldiers.

In Washington, the members of the Business Women's council, a Blue Triangle league of the Y. W. C. A., made up of girl government employees, drill twice a week under an army officer, and between five and six o'clock on these days long lines of motorcars are parked to watch the drill.

Wherever possible, the recreation equipment includes a field somewhere for outdoor sports.

War clubs are a part of the plan and membership in these involves a pledge to serve in the host of the girl's ability in the ranks of the Women's Industrial Army—the "second line of defense," and a promise of loyalty by promoting in every possible way the spirit of service.

SUDDEN CLIMAX

By WALTER J. DELANEY.

(Copyright, 1918, Western Newspaper Union.)

You could have knocked Afton Locke down with a feather when he was unexpectedly informed that he was a rich man. The law firm of Deale & Gregory had sent him a letter asking him to call at their office on a matter of importance and urgency, and the first words of the senior partner of the firm fairly stunned Locke.

"We have sent for you to inform you that you are the sole heir to the estate of your relative, Ira Howell," he pronounced.

"Why?" involuntarily exclaimed Locke—"I did not know that my father's cousin was dead."

"A month since," enlightened the other. "He has left you all he had—his old home at Grassmere, about eight thousand dollars in cash and a quarry enterprise, which represents his principal investment."

"You—you amaze me!" stammered forth Locke.

It had struck Locke all of a heap. Never in his wildest dreams had he even fancied such a windfall as this. Ira Howell he had seen exactly twice in his lifetime.

"Mr. Deale was a strange man," fell upon his ears in the dreary tones of the lawyer. "He was pestered to death with mendicant or sycophantic relatives waiting for him to die. Their petty meannesses disgusted him. He liked the way you buckled down to safe habits and hard work and his estate is yours. There is Grassmere, and you will have ample ready funds. As to the quarry property, that is in litigation. A claimant who was a former partner of Mr. Deale has tied it up with an injunction. There is no doubt, however, that we will beat him out, for we have money and he has none."

It was a strange experience, that of the following week, for Afton Locke. He gave a farewell dinner of sumptuous proportions to his fellow clerks at the store. A string of them later visited him at his hotel. When Locke started from the city he carried in his pocket a memorandum as long as a dozen so-called loans, negotiated by his impetuous friends.

It was worse at Grassmere. Locke found it to be a beautiful place and planned how, as a gentleman farmer, life would be enviable. Then there swarmed down upon him a horde of hungry distant relatives. Most of them had never heard of him before, but all professed the deepest regard for him. They ate at his table, some from a distance took up their abode with him. A widow, a forty-fifth cousin, wheedled him out of five hundred dollars. One Cousin Felix, a horny-headed old fraud and idler, persuaded Locke to buy out a little business in the town for him, proceeded to mortgage it promptly and sold out his equity before he actually began business.

Locke was so harassed by his new-found relatives that he decided he would leave Grassmere in charge of the caretaker, and not settle down permanently until he had definitely perfected his plans for the future. In his secret heart he dreamed of a mistress for the palatial old mansion. This was how it was: At Hipton, where he had worked before going to the city, he had become casually acquainted with an old man named Robert Warren. One evening, calling upon him, he found his daughter, Nina, at home. She was to spend a week's vacation from a seminary. Mr. Warren had a pitifully small income, but he managed to keep his daughter at school. She and Locke became congenial friends. Then the start of a romance ended for her back at her lessons and for Locke at his new post of duty in the city.

To Hipton he proceeded now, but not to call upon Mr. Warren. Many a time the old man had referred to a valid claim he held in litigation, and had mourned the lack of a thousand dollars to push it to an issue. His earnestness had deeply impressed Locke, who sought out the attorney whom Mr. Warren had named as representing his interests.

"I wish to loan a client of yours a thousand dollars," he imparted to the lawyer, "but I don't wish him to know that I am interested in the transaction."

Naturally the lawyer was in complete harmony with any arrangement that would bring him a fee. He would shield Locke by pretending to advance the money himself, and Locke went back to the city feeling that he had done a good deed.

"That injunction suit," spoke his own attorney, a few days later—"we will have to discuss it. The other side, I fancied, had about exhausted funds and fighting spirit, but we received a visit from a Hipton attorney today who threatens to carry it to a higher court. His client, Mr. Warren—"

"Not Mr. Robert Warren?" cried Locke electrically.

"Why, do you know him?"

"Yes, we must indeed discuss the case," and within an hour he was familiar with all its details.

As a matter of right and justice Locke told the Hipton attorney next day: "Your client is entitled to all he asks for. Will you kindly advise him that through a remarkable circumstance I happen to control the quarry property in litigation, and offer him a full half interest, and if he will release the injunction we will resume the business—as partners."

And six months later, as he had hoped and planned, Afton Locke acquired another partner, a life one, the charming daughter of his business associate.

FIGHTING IN THE ALPINE HEIGHTS

Passages on the rocky heights of the Adamello, where the Italians are doing some of the most spectacular fighting of the war.

A BOX FROM HOME

Drawn by Gaar Williams, Division of Pictorial Publicity.

Food savings of millions of Americans during our first year of war enabled this government to send enormous food shipments abroad for our fighting forces and the Allied nations. Our savings in cereals—out of a short crop—amounted to 154,900,000 bushels; all of which was shipped to Europe. We increased our meat and fat shipments 844,600,000 pounds. This was America's "box from home" to our army abroad and the civilians and military forces of the Allied nations.

There is nothing in the world more desired or more worth having now than VICTORY.

HIS NEW JOB

By VINCENT G. PERRY.

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Promotion! Assistant manager of that large departmental store! It almost seemed too good to be true to Robert Campbell, and for 15 minutes after he had received notification of his advancement he could do nothing but sit and wonder at his good luck. Wouldn't Carrie be proud and glad. He hurried to the telephone booth and stopped as he heard Carrie's voice.

"I care for you only. Meet me tonight. I love you, dearie, and I want you for my own," she was saying over the wire.

Bob put his hand to his head. He could hardly believe his ears until she repeated the same words, and then as she caught sight of him, said: "That is all, thank you," as curtly as she could and hung up the receiver. But Bob was not deceived. He had heard enough.

"Did you want to see me, Bobbie," she said in the same old way.

"No thank you," he gulped. "You had better finish your telephone conversation."

"I had finished," she answered, without showing any embarrassment.

"I don't think you had," he turned about and left her. Carrie looked after him in wonder. She made her way back to the desk that she had occupied for the first time that day.

"Have you heard about Mr. Campbell's promotion, Miss Alderson?" the girl who had charge of Carrie's old counter, asked. "He is to be assistant manager. Promotions seem to have gone the rounds."

"That is splendid for him," Carrie exclaimed in delight. "I am so glad for he has worked hard for promotion."

When she was left alone Carrie began to make excuses for Bob's coldness. He was filling his role as assistant manager.

When noon hour arrived no Bob appeared. Carrie waited for nearly half an hour with her coat and hat on before the realization that he was not coming came to her. So Bob had let his promotion come between them—she had to acknowledge it to herself. She was not good enough for an assistant manager's wife. It was hard to credit Bob with such an ungrateful spirit, for he had always been so kind and considerate. The little home they had planned to build with the garden and rose hedge had been almost lost but apparently Bob had forgotten. An assistant manager would be able to afford more than a little home and could figure in society. The manager was past middle age and in time Bob would probably step into his place. Then he could marry an heiress—the president's pretty daughter or someone else equally impressive. Bob was handsome, ambitious and progressive. He would be a big man some day and their little love affair could really mean nothing to him. That she was pretty, ambitious and progressive as well did not enter Carrie's mind. Whatever she had done was to increase her savings in order to help Bob when the time came for the little home. As Carrie realized that all her dreams were shattered she burst into tears.

By the time the lunch hour was over she had dried her eyes and was busily working at her desk when the assistant manager made his appearance. Bob started as he caught sight of the new head of the department. "I beg your pardon. I did not know that you had been promoted to this desk," he said in a reserved tone. Carrie did not look up. "Will you please prepare a report, giving details of the girls in your department, as to length of service and salaries they are now receiving. I would also like monthly reports on the sales made by each saleswoman, in future, Miss Alderson."

"The 'Miss Alderson' was too much for Carrie. 'I will make the first report, Mr. Campbell,' she said icily, 'but you must speak to my successor about the monthly report for I am to give my notice tomorrow night.'

"You are to be married, I presume, Miss Alderson," Bob felt his heart sinking.

"How dare you insult me," Carrie flashed. "Is it not enough to slight me as you have, because you have been promoted and consider yourself above your old friends, without taunting me. No; I am not going to be married because I have been silly enough to waste my affections upon a man that was not worthy of them. I am leaving because I refuse to work under an assistant manager who is not a gentleman."

Bob's cheeks were scarlet. "How could you expect me to act differently," he said, "when I heard you confessing your love for another man over the telephone this morning?"

"How dare you—" Carrie began, but stopped with a gasp of understanding. "Oh, Bob, how silly of you!" she cried as she rummaged through her desk for her order book. "Here it is; I was giving an order for some popular songs for the music counter. That is what you heard!"

"I was an idiot," he laughed. "I have been unhappy all morning over it, too. It spoiled all the pleasure of my promotion. The minute I was notified of it I thought of you and the joy the news would bring to you. We can build the little home any time now, dear, and we can have a rose hedge the first year."

FIRE PROCLAMATION COMMONWEALTH OF KENTUCKY A. O. Stanley, Governor

To the people of Kentucky greetings: The menace of fire is greater now than ever, and the waste resulting from it entails a more irreparable loss. This is the time for a maximum of production and of conservation, and a minimum waste. Thousands of tons of precious food stuffs, millions of feet of lumber, homes which cannot be reproduced on account of the scarcity of labor, all are destroyed by fire which could, with proper care, have been prevented. It is the duty of every citizen to assist in the prevention of fires and in bettering those conditions which produce them.

I, A. O. Stanley, Governor of this Commonwealth, therefore designate Saturday, November 2, 1918, as fire and accident prevention day, and upon this day call upon the people of this Commonwealth to remove from their premises all substances which are liable to produce fire. See that all the heating devices and chimneys are in safe condition. I recommend the close inspection, especially of store-houses and manufacturing plants, hotels and factories and call upon the local authorities to give careful attention to the prevention, fire protection and the prevention of accidents. I ask that fire drills and exercises be held in all public and private schools, and that instructions and lessons be given in Fire Protection and Fire Prevention, and against accidents of every nature.

Given under my hand this 19th day of October, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and eighteen and in the one hundred and twenty-sixth year of the Commonwealth.

By the Governor A. O. Stanley
James P. Lewis, Secretary of State
E. Malt Kerr, Assistant Sec. of State.

Conditions in Hun Prison Camps.

London Correspondents in Italy and who have conversed with British wounded who are being returned from German prison camps to England state that all the men report the conditions of life in the German prison camps to be very bad. At Brandenburg there are about 300 soldiers taken from British ships. Many of them are over 40, incapable of doing much labor work, but they are forced to labor. There are many reports of parcels of food sent from England being stolen and that their parcels were kept up in the contents went bad.

Three Million Buttons Bought for Fourth Loan

Buying three million buttons is just one of the minor tasks which had to be taken care of before the Fourth Liberty Loan campaign by Ralph Waldo Emerson of the War Loan Organization at Washington.

But on these trifles Emerson was able to save the government sixty-five thousand dollars in real money; a vast amount of celluloid, which contains gun cotton; an enormous quantity of white paper; hundreds of gallons of wood alcohol, and hundreds of hours of labor.

The saving was brought about by the employment of a steel engraving process. The old buttons have always been made with celluloid and paper.

"Everything Goes In War, 'Says Jackie' Even a Fellow's Hair"

"Oh, very well. We're the bald-headed twins if you say so."

So say these two members of the U. S. Naval Band, Cleveland station, which is on tour in the Fourth Federal Reserve District to boost bond sales for the Fourth Loan. You can't get a "rise" out of either of these boys by reference to their untattooed domes. Witness the smiles.

"Everything goes in war," says the baldy with the big horn, "even a fellow's hair."

That one is Edmond Inski, who enlisted with his E flat tuba the minute the band was talked of. His "twin" is A. F. Gerloch, who was financial secretary of the musicians' union in Cleveland before enlisting. Inski is 21—Gerloch is 20.
